

The Missing Pieces Project

& Suffolk's Unforgettable Garden Story: Protecting Historic Designed Landscapes

The Hold, Ipswich
Saturday 12th Aug. 2-4pm

Join us for a drop-in workshop with Historic England and the Gardens Trust, and learn how to add to the Missing Pieces Project.

Come along to...

- Find out how to share material relating to your favourite Suffolk registered park or garden.
- Perhaps you have a photograph, postcard or story you would like to bring along?
- Learn how you can take photos of the views shown in the Nigel Temple postcard collection held in the Historic England Archive.

Be part of The Missing Pieces Project

All over England are places with stories to tell: from buildings to battlefields, some on your doorstep, others just a day trip away. Their stories are still being written – and they won't be complete until you share your side.

The Missing Pieces Project invites you to share your pictures and stories of the unique and memorable places on the National Heritage List for England.

Every snapshot and story you add is an important piece of the picture. And the more pieces of the picture we have, the better we can work together to protect what makes these places special.
