A RELATIONSHIP OF SHARED VALUES

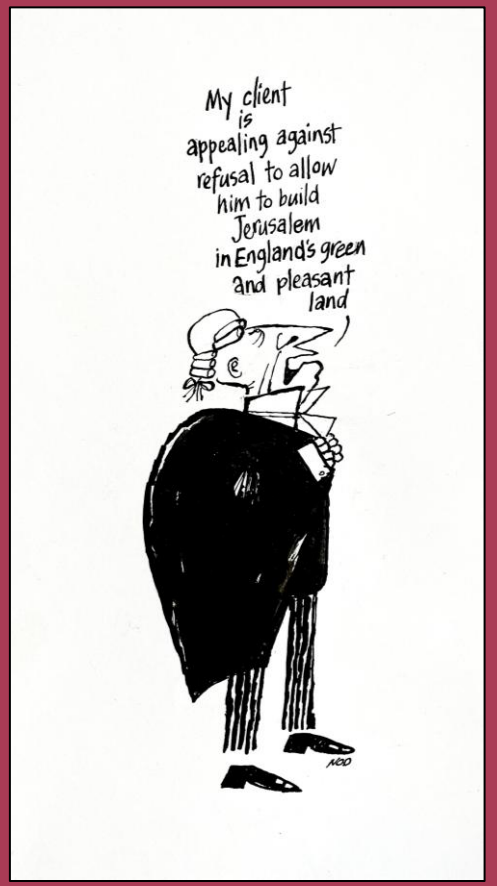

SUFFOLK PRESERVATION SOCIETY

Campaigning for our county's heritage since 1929

As the Suffolk Preservation Society approaches its hundredth anniversary in 2029, it is a time of celebration, and also a time of reflection.

During the past century, we have promoted the unique qualities of our county – its landscape, its buildings, and its communities.

But as we enter our next century, how can we do more? What are our challenges for the next one hundred years, and how do we continue to promote our cause?

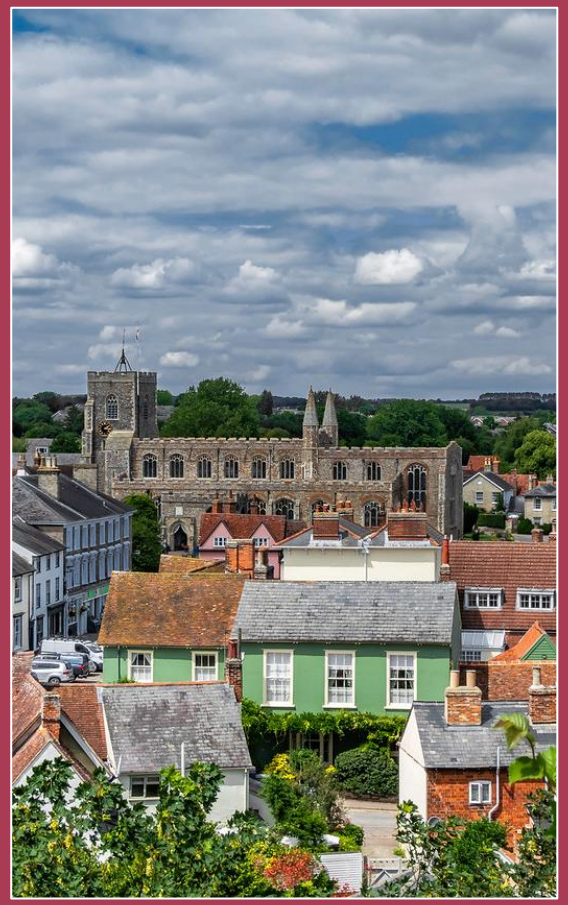

OUR IMPACT

Suffolk Preservation Society
Campaigning for our county's heritage since 1929

For the Suffolk Preservation Society, our ambition is to work more closely in partnership – with individuals, with communities, with business – all of whom share our passion for our county.

- We campaign to save significant historic buildings and landscapes at risk.
- We support training and education in the traditional crafts that underpin the maintenance and restoration of Suffolk's historic buildings and landscapes, like pargetting, flint-knapping, and thatching.
- We empower local communities to have greater agency in shaping their places, through signposting to professional expertise and active engagement with Neighbourhood Planning.
- We promote the history and heritage of Suffolk through our events and communications.

OUR MISSION

Suffolk Preservation Society
Campaigning for our county's heritage since 1929

We care about Suffolk – our communities, our landscapes, our buildings. We champion the county's unique heritage, and we work together to protect and conserve what makes Suffolk special.

OUR POSITION

Suffolk Preservation Society

We recognize the need for housing and infrastructure. And we understand that by working with developers and communities, we can ensure sustainable and constructive outcomes.

Our county is not a museum, and by encouraging high-quality construction that honours our built heritage, our historic towns and villages with grow through architecture that is sensitive to its surroundings.

We seek to build constructive partnerships with businesses that share our view.

OUR VISION

Suffolk Preservation Society
Campaigning for our county's heritage since 1929

Suffolk is a diverse county. Rural and urban, ancient and modern, industrial development and unspoilt landscape. Such contrasts sit in tension with one another. Yet a path can be found that respects what is significant, while also allowing change.

Our vision is of a county that embraces the new, while honouring the past. We see a future where we work in partnership – with communities, with funders, with developers, with employers.

Together, we will ensure that our precious historic buildings and landscapes are preserved and given contemporary purpose, that education and training continues in heritage craft skills providing secure and valuable employment, and that our towns and villages are enhanced with high-quality construction.

Our vision is simple, working together in celebrating the heritage of our county.
